

Bodemzicht Farm

This is a mixed farm with agroforestry in view. Chickens are mostly fed on the open field grassland in the area where trees are planted, while a no-dig garden is situated outside the agroforest field for proper maintenance. This is because Anne and Ricardo believe that fungi are better farmers than humans. The chickens mobile houses are moved about at different times along the grassy areas that are cleared from the field for free range.

Agroforest grassland

Chickens free range

Chickens' mobile houses

Chickens feeding on compost pile

Clearing overgrown grasses for free range

No-dig beds

Beds with vegetables and irrigation equipment mounted